

How Google Play Music Gets Replaced by YouTube Music?

TechRounder PDF Edition

Live article: <https://www.techrounder.com/technology/how-google-play-music-gets-replaced-by-youtube-music/>

By Vipin PG | Published August 15, 2020 | Updated August 15, 2020 | Format: Article | 5 min read

In brief

Google has several music services and the oldest one is Google Play Music. It lets you upload your own music, or you can even pay for a subscription to access more than 20 million songs for sure.

Google has several music services and the oldest one is Google Play Music. It lets you upload your own music, or you can even pay for a subscription to access more than 20 million songs for sure.

Recently, Google has notified its users all around the world that Google Play Music will be replaced by YouTube music. And in the coming months, all the users of Google Play Music will lose access to streaming in the Google Play Music app. Users can take the help of a tool to transfer their profile, library, and playlists from Google Play Music into YouTube music with just a single click. You should note that YouTube music is getting more features which makes it a bigger competitor to streaming services such as Apple Music and Spotify. For time being, the users would have easy access to both services so that they would be able to move their music over and get familiar with the YouTube Music interface. It would be better for you to understand that the user interface of YouTube Music is clean and simple to understand for the users. You are not going to face any issues while using it for sure. It has a similar interface just like Google Play Music and you would love using it.

Google Play Music Getting Replaced by YouTube Music

At the end of August, you are not able to purchase, upload, preorder, or even download music from Google Play Music through Music Manager. Later on, users of South Africa and New Zealand will no longer be able to use the Google Play Music app. In most of the other areas and the US, it is going to be happening in October. You can find your uploads, playlists, purchases, and likes in Google Play Music until December so that you can easily transfer your files to YouTube Music easily without any hassle for sure. YouTube Music has released a tool in May to help you move your playlist, music, and preferences to the new platform. If you are not transferring your account, then Google will cancel your subscription at the end of the last billing cycle. Are you looking out for the steps you need to follow for moving out your files from Google Play Music to YouTube Music? If yes is your answer, then here are some of the important steps you need to follow right now!

Steps to move your music from Google Play Music to YouTube Music

- The first step is to download the YouTube music app for Android or IOS. You can even do it from a desktop and go to music.youtube.com/transfer and click the transfer
- After downloading the app, you are going to see a transfer button at the top of the screen in both YouTube Music and Google Play Music. You can tap it from either app and your purchase, uploads, albums, added songs, personal and subscribed likes and dislikes, playlists, and personal taste preferences will start moving from Google Play Music to YouTube music.

- The process can take a few hours as it totally depends on how much music is in your library. You easily close the app and use your mobile phone in the meantime, and later open it again to check out the progress if you want to. Once the download is complete, you would get a notification and an email that your process is fully complete.

- At last, you need to open YouTube Music and search your music in the Library tab, along with updated recommendations.

Related: How Spotify Music Converter For Windows Helps to Download Music Albums

Why YouTube Music is getting Popular?

There are millions of users all around the prefer using it due to its great features and benefits to the users. YouTube Music works through an app and web player, offering more than 40 million albums, songs, tracks, remixes, and live performances. If you are a music lover and love listening to the latest music, then you should go for YouTube music without any second thought for sure. Recently, YouTube has added several new features based on user suggestions and reviews. Let's go through some of those important features right now!

Playlist creation

While using this music app, you should note that playlists can have up to 5,000 songs (instead of the old 1,000 songs limit). It is easy to do a quick search from within a playlist to add a new song and add music videos to playlists along with songs. Stations from Google Play Music are found in YouTube music as playlists, and you would be able to search through their tracks.

Uploads

You can easily listen to your uploaded and purchased music from Google Play Music after you add up or transfer up to 100,000 personal tracks to your music library in YouTube Music. Google Play Music only allowed 50,000 personal tracks and not more than that.

Offline listening

Offline Listening is one of the best features of YouTube Music. If you are a paying member, then you can download any song, music video or playlists, or can take the help of smart download features to do it for you.

Explore tab

There is a new Explore tab that offers music discovery, including playlist and new music by genre or mood for sure. You would be able to explore new songs, playlists, and tracks by searching the artist's name.

Conclusion

At last, you are aware of the fact that Google Play Music will be replaced soon and you need to go for YouTube Music for your overall music requirements. The above-mentioned steps will help you in transferring your all files from Google Play Music to YouTube Music easily without any hassle. The Google Play Music Unlimited members will be moved to the equivalent tier of YouTube Premium or YouTube Music Premium based on their current subscription, at the same price. If you still haven't transferred your files then you should do it as soon as possible for sure. Just try it from your end and share your valuable experiences here with us right now! Also read: Best YouTube Audio Downloader