Quick answer

To configure a SIP account in the Google Phone app, open the dialer, go to Settings, then Calling accounts, and select SIP accounts. Tap the plus button, enter your SIP username, password, and server address, then save.

SIP accounts and SIP applications are being used by the users all over the world to make cheap VoIP calls to international destinations. There are number of services available such as BSNL Wings etc and users can use any of the SIP client on their mobile or laptop to make and receive calls.

Now, Google's default dialer applications that comes with most of the handset supports inbuilt SIP service. Users can add their SIP account into that application and can make and receive calls using the same. No need to have any third party application for making VoIP calls.

Let see how we can configure the SIP account on Google Phone Application.
