Some of the points of difference

- Ease of Use - Talking about the ease of use of both the platform, they both are easy to use. Spotify has an easy-to-use platform with which users are familiar. Users generally don't find it challenging to search for their favorite albums or music from their favorite artists. Talking about Soundcloud, users do sometimes find it difficult to search for their favorite songs. But yes, talking about the interface, it also shares an easy-to-navigate interface.

- Song Library - Spotify has around 50 million soundtracks, whereas Soundcloud has over 125 million songs uploaded to its platform. It isn't easy to upload songs on Spotify than on Soundcloud. However, if you are a well-established artist sharing your songs on the platform, you won't find it difficult. At the same time, Soundcloud is for those who want to establish their music career and have just started. However, comparing the sound library, Spotify has premium quality songs. In contrast, you can find whereas Soundcloud has songs from the budding artist so that you can find low-quality content.

- Downloading of Songs - In Spotify, users can download songs for offline listening if they have a premium subscription. Spotify allows premium users to download songs in high-quality audio. However, with Spotify, you will get a download limit of ten thousand songs. However, most of the songs on Soundcloud are free two downloads. There will be some songs on Soundcloud, for which the user must have the premium version.
- Paid Plans of Soundcloud - There is a free version of Soundcloud as well as the paid version. The free version of the app allows you to listen to songs from various users, and you can also download songs for free. The free version has ads to justify the paid plans. There are two premium plans $4.99/month (Soundcloud Go) and $9.99/month (Soundcloud Go+). With Soundcloud Go, you get access to ad-free songs as well as can save unlimited songs. Soundcloud Go+ offers features like saving unlimited tracks, ad-free listening, access to a full catalog, and high-quality audio.
- Focus on freshers - Soundcloud gives a platform to new rappers and artists to showcase their talent and content and thus helps in enhancing their outreach. In contrast, Spotify contains a mix of traditional, hit, and popular music albums from more known faces from the industry.
